"YOU'RE DESPICABLE"

The Looney Tunes cast of characters would not be complete without the wild and wonderful Daffy Duck. First envisioned by Tex Avery, this maladjusted mallard made his debut appearance in "Porky's Duck Hunt" way back in 1937. The essence of Daffy's indignant outrage at a world that does not instantly gratify all of his needs is fully captured in his famous "You're despicable!" quote first heard in 1952.

Like a child who never outgrows the "terrible two's", his "me first" attitude, explosive reactions and slightly twisted logic make him a perfect foil to Bugs Bunny. Their long-running feud which evolved during the 1950's, constantly pits Bugs' cool intelligence and unflappable self-possession against Daffy's determined folly. Bugs and Daffy have shared the spotlight in more than 20 theatrical shorts and have been delighting audiences with their crazy antics ever since.

Vibrating with pure energy, Daffy is like a live firecracker always ready to explode, especially when thwarted. Driven to win at any cost, Daffy is always his own worst enemy. Zany, unpredictable and wildly funny, Daffy is not a quitter and will go to any lengths to achieve his goals. His childish behavior and many faults are all too "human" and these failings make Daffy lovable.

Daffy is a part of Americana and works with any age group. He is especially popular with young boys who love his high animation and wackiness. His complex personality makes him strong enough to stand alone.
